Report of the Special Rapporteur for follow-up on concluding observations (CCPR/C/87/CRP.1/Add.7)

[Mr. RIVAS POSADA, speaking as Special Rapporteur for follow-up on concluding observations]

57. Mr. SOLARI YRIGOYEN asked what the procedure was where the situation in a State party was examined in the absence of a report and a delegation. Had there been any follow-up, for example, to the concluding observations sent to Equatorial Guinea?

58. Mr. RIVAS POSADA pointed out that the concluding observations in such cases were provisional and confidential. However, a decision should certainly be taken regarding a possible follow-up procedure.

59. Mr. SOLARI YRIGOYEN said he understood that the provisional observations became definitive after 12 months.

60. The CHAIRPERSON said that Mr. Solari Yrigoyen had correctly drawn attention to an oversight on the part of the Committee, which had decided one year previously to make the concluding observations on Equatorial Guinea definitive and to publish them in the annual report that the Committee was about to discuss.

CCPR, A/61/40 vol. I (2006)

CHAPTER VII. FOLLOW-UP TO CONCLUDING OBSERVATIONS

234. In chapter VII of its annual report for 2003 (A/58/40, vol. I), the Committee described the framework that it has set out for providing for more effective follow-up, subsequent to the adoption of the concluding observations in respect of States parties' reports submitted under article 40 of the Covenant. In chapter VII of its last annual report (A/60/40, vol. I), an updated account of the Committee's experience in this regard over the last year was provided. The current chapter again updates the Committee's experience to 1 August 2006.

235. Over the period covered by the present annual report, Mr. Rafael Rivas Posada continued to act as the Committee's Special Rapporteur for follow-up to concluding observations. At the Committee's eighty-fifth, eighty-sixth and eighty-seventh sessions, he presented progress reports to the Committee on intersessional developments and made recommendations which prompted the Committee to take appropriate decisions on a State-by-State basis.

236. For all reports of States parties examined by the Committee under article 40 of the Covenant over the last year, the Committee has identified, according to its developing practice, a limited number of priority concerns, with respect to which it seeks the State party's response, within a period of a year, on the measures taken to give effect to its recommendations. The Committee welcomes the extent and depth of cooperation under this procedure by States parties, as may be observed from the following comprehensive table. Over the reporting period, since 1 August 2005, 14 States parties (Albania, Belgium, Benin, Colombia, El Salvador, Kenya, Mauritius, Philippines, Poland, Serbia and Montenegro, Sri Lanka, Tajikistan, Togo and Uganda) have submitted information to the Committee under the follow-up procedure. Since the follow-up procedure was instituted in March 2001, only 11 States parties (Equatorial Guinea, Greece, Iceland, Israel, Mali, Moldova, Namibia, Suriname, the Gambia, Uzbekistan and Venezuela) have failed to supply follow-up information that has fallen due. The Committee reiterates that it views this procedure as a constructive mechanism by which the dialogue initiated with the examination of a report can be continued, and which serves to simplify the process of the next periodic report on the part of the State party.

237. The table below details the experience of the Committee over the last year. Accordingly, it contains no reference to those States parties with respect to which the Committee, upon assessment of the follow-up responses provided to it, decided to take no further action prior to the period covered by this report.

CHAPTER VII. FOLLOW-UP ON CONCLUDING OBSERVATIONS

220. In chapter VII of its annual report for 2003 (A/58/40, vol. I), the Committee described the framework that it has set out for providing for more effective follow-up, subsequent to the adoption of the concluding observations in respect of States parties' reports submitted under article 40 of the Covenant. In chapter VII of its last annual report (A/61/40, vol. I), an updated account of the Committee's experience in this regard over the last year was provided. The current chapter again updates the Committee's experience to 1 August 2007.

221. Over the period covered by the present annual report, Mr. Rafael Rivas-Posada continued to act as the Committee's Special Rapporteur for follow-up to concluding observations. At the Committee's eighty-fifth, eighty-sixth and eighty-seventh sessions, he presented progress reports to the Committee on intersessional developments and made recommendations which prompted the Committee to take appropriate decisions State by State. In view of Mr. Rivas-Posada's election to the Chair of the Committee, Sir Nigel Rodley was appointed the new Special Rapporteur for follow-up on concluding observations at the Committee's ninetieth session.

222. For all reports of States parties examined by the Committee under article 40 of the Covenant over the last year, the Committee has identified, according to its developing practice, a limited number of priority concerns, with respect to which it seeks the State party's response, within a period of a year, on the measures taken to give effect to its recommendations. The Committee welcomes the extent and depth of cooperation under this procedure by States parties, as may be observed from the following comprehensive table.¹ Over the reporting period, since 1 August 2006, 12 States parties (Albania, Canada, Greece, Iceland, Israel, Italy, Slovenia, Syrian Arab Republic, Thailand, Uganda, Uzbekistan and Venezuela) have submitted information to the Committee under the follow-up procedure. Since the follow-up procedure was instituted in March 2001, only 12 States parties (Brazil, Central African Republic, Democratic Republic of the Congo, Equatorial Guinea, Mali, Moldova, Namibia, Surinam, Paraguay, the Gambia, Surinam and Yemen) and UNMIK have failed to supply follow-up information that has fallen due. The Committee reiterates that it views this procedure as a constructive mechanism by which the dialogue initiated with the examination of a report can be continued, and which serves to simplify the process of the next periodic report on the part of the State party.

223. The table below takes account of some of the Working Group's recommendations and details the experience of the Committee over the last year. Accordingly, it contains no reference to those States parties with respect to which the Committee, upon assessment of the follow-up responses provided to it, decided before 1 August 2006 to take no further action prior to the period covered by this report.

Summary record of the 2533rd meeting Held at Headquarters, New York, on Wednesday, 2 April 2008, at 11 a.m.

Follow-up to concluding observations on State reports and to Views under the Optional Protocol

Progress report of the Special Rapporteur for follow-up on concluding observations

1. Sir Nigel Rodley (Special Rapporteur for follow-up on concluding observations), introducing an updated English version of his earlier report (CCPR/C/92/R.1) tracking the changes made in the light of developments since its publication, said that he had consulted with representatives of the Central African Republic, Mali, Namibia, Sri Lanka and Suriname and would soon be meeting with representatives of the Democratic Republic of the Congo. Regrettably, it had not been possible to meet with representatives of the Gambia and Namibia, which had not been forthcoming in making the necessary arrangements.

2. The Special Rapporteur's role was to urge States to provide prompt feedback on the points raised by the Committee in its concluding observations. Such efforts were counter-productive, however, if requests for information were made year after year and a subsequent periodic report of the State party was due or overdue. In those cases, the State party should be encouraged to submit a report rather than respond to concerns paragraph by paragraph. Nevertheless, failing the submission of a report, a response to the individual paragraphs would be better than nothing.

3. He hoped that the updated version of his report could be reformatted to make it more reader-friendly. Concerning overdue responses to concluding observations, he recommended, with respect to Moldova and Uzbekistan, that no further action should be taken in view of the States parties' submission of periodic reports.

24. [Sir Nigel Rodley] With regard to Equatorial Guinea, he had contemplated the same form of words as for the Gambia in his recommendation. However, a meeting had taken place with the State party in October 2007, when it had promised to submit a report by 31 December of that year. Since it still had not done so, a further reminder should be sent.

25. Ms. Majodina expressed particular concern about the human rights situation in Equatorial Guinea, where a number of South African missionaries had been arrested and where the death penalty was still in force. She welcomed the possibility open to the Committee of examining country situations without having received a report and wondered whether such action might be envisaged once again in the case of that State party.

26. Sir Nigel Rodley said that rule 70 of the Committee's rules of procedure did indeed offer that possibility, of which the Committee had availed itself for Equatorial Guinea in October 2003. As a response was still expected from the State party, the Committee might prefer to wait before deciding to hold further hearings under that rule. It should also be borne in mind that the Committee had a considerable backlog of situations for consideration in the absence of a report.

27. Mr. Lallah wondered whether the secretariat of the Committee might not, as in the case of the Gambia, contact the State party informally.

28. Sir Nigel Rodley proposed that, since the State party's initial report had still not been submitted, even though it had sent a delegation to the October 2003 meeting, Equatorial Guinea should be informed that it would be in breach of its obligation to cooperate with the Committee if it did not submit a report by the Committee's ninety-third session.

33. The recommendations contained in the progress report of the Special Rapporteur for follow-up on concluding observations, as amended, were approved.

The meeting was suspended at 12.30 p.m. and resumed at 12.35 p.m. ...

FOLLOW-UP TO CONCLUDING OBSERVATIONS ON STATE REPORTS AND TO VIEWS UNDER THE OPTIONAL PROTOCOL

Report of the Special Rapporteur for follow-up on concluding observations (CCPR/C/93/R.1)

1. Sir Nigel RODLEY, Special Rapporteur for follow-up on concluding observations, introduced his report contained in document CCPR/C/93/R.1.

2. Commenting first on Equatorial Guinea and the Gambia, which had never submitted a report, he recommended that both States parties should be declared to be in breach of their obligation to cooperate with the Committee in the performance of its functions under part IV of the Covenant.

14. [Ms. CHANET] The situation in Equatorial Guinea and the Gambia had been considered by the Committee in the absence of a report. If the two States parties persisted in ignoring the Committee's requests for a report, the situation should be considered again.

27. The CHAIRPERSON said that clarification was needed on the methods which might be used to declare a State party to be in breach of its obligation to cooperate with the Committee in the performance of its functions under part IV of the Covenant.

28. Sir Nigel RODLEY said he had assumed that if his report was adopted, the Committee would take a decision declaring a State party to be in breach of its obligations under the Covenant, which would be communicated to that State party. It might be desirable to indicate in the executive summary that such steps had been taken.

31. Concerning her question about the two States parties to be declared in breach of their obligations to cooperate with the Committee under part IV, the Committee could request a new report and hold another hearing in the absence of a report if it did not receive one. The issue was for the Committee as a whole to decide. However, further consideration should be given to reverting to States parties on which there had already been hearings, as there were many other States which required attention.

32. As to the format of the report, instead of several lines indicating that reminders had been sent to the State party concerned, there could be one sentence which said "Reminders had been sent on the following dates". That would facilitate the work of researchers...

... 37. Mr. LALLAH, referring to the Chairperson's question concerning how to deal with a State party's breach of its obligation to cooperate with the Committee, said that members should decide on the matter at the current meeting. He suggested adding a part C to chapter III of the annual report of the Committee, which would cover States parties that had not met that obligation. That could resolve the perennial problem of when and how to take non-cooperating States to task and publicize that fact.

38. Mr. JOHNSON LÓPEZ said that it might be useful to include in the report the names or posts of the representatives of States parties failing to provide requested information who had been contacted by the Special Rapporteur. The task forces might also include in the country files and make public the status of implementation of the obligations by a particular State party. Given that there had been sessions in which there was no problem of late submission of information, it might also be helpful to list the States which had met their obligations on time.

39. The draft report of the Special Rapporteur for follow-up on concluding observations was adopted.

CHAPTER VII. FOLLOW-UP TO CONCLUDING OBSERVATIONS

194. In chapter VII of its annual report for 2003, ²⁰ the Committee described the framework that it has set out for providing for more effective follow up, subsequent to the adoption of the concluding observations in respect of States parties' reports submitted under article 40 of the Covenant. In chapter VII of its last annual report (A/62/40, vol. I), an updated account of the Committee's experience in this regard over the last year was provided. The current chapter again updates the Committee's experience to 1 August 2008.

195. Over the period covered by the present annual report, Sir Nigel Rodley acted as the Committee's Special Rapporteur for follow-up on concluding observations. At the Committee's ninety-first, ninety-second and ninety third sessions, he presented progress reports to the Committee on inter-sessional developments and made recommendations which prompted the Committee to take appropriate decisions State by State.

196. For all reports of States parties examined by the Committee under article 40 of the Covenant over the last year, the Committee has identified, according to its developing practice, a limited number of priority concerns, with respect to which it seeks the State party's response, within a period of a year, on the measures taken to give effect to its recommendations. The Committee welcomes the extent and depth of cooperation under this procedure by States parties, as may be observed from the following comprehensive table.²¹ Over the reporting period, since 1 August 2007, 11 States parties (Bosnia and Herzegovina, Brazil, Hong Kong Special Administrative Region (China), Mali, Paraguay, Republic of Korea, Sri Lanka, Suriname, Togo, United States of America and Ukraine), as well as the United Nations Interim Administration Mission in Kosovo (UNMIK), have submitted information to the Committee under the follow up procedure. Since the follow up procedure was instituted in March 2001, 10 States parties (Barbados, Central African Republic, Chile, Democratic Republic of the Congo, Equatorial Guinea, Gambia, Honduras, Madagascar, Namibia and Yemen) have failed to supply follow up information that has fallen due. The Committee reiterates that it views this procedure as a constructive mechanism by which the dialogue initiated with the examination of a report can be continued, and which serves to simplify the process of the next periodic report on the part of the State party.

197. The table below takes account of some of the Working Group's recommendations and details the experience of the Committee over the last year. Accordingly, it contains no reference to those States parties with respect to which the Committee, upon assessment of the follow up responses provided to it, decided before 1 August 2007 to take no further action prior to the period covered by this report.

198. The Committee emphasizes that certain States parties have failed to cooperate with it in the performance of its functions under Part IV of the Covenant, thereby violating their obligations (Gambia, Equatorial Guinea).
